WEB-BASED MISCELLANEA

14.25   Blogs & Twitter Postings

See also QuickCheck Model for BROADCASTS & WEB MISCELLANEA: BLOGS

A blog (short for web log) is essentially an online diary in which the blogger periodically posts thoughts, opinions, reviews, and news items. Each item typically has a caption. Reader responses may also be included at the site. A citation to a blog follows the same basic pattern used for most online essays, with minor modifications.

- Your citation will need to include the date the work was posted.
   Whether you wish to include the time of the posting is a matter of choice.

- If you choose to cite the work in your Source List under the title of a specific article, then you will want to cite the specific URL at which that article appears. If your Source List cites to the blog itself, you need only provide the URL for the home page.

- If you choose to carry the Source List Entry under the name of the blogger, you may either cite the blog generically, with its website root, or you might cite a specific article and its specific URL.

- If the name of the author is part of the Weblog's formal name, that name does not have to be repeated in the Author Field. In that case, however, the name of the Weblog should be included in the Subsequent Note to ensure proper identity and attribution.
